

In1341WO

Abstract

Patterning method, and field effect transistors

An explanation is given of, inter alia, a patterning method, in which a filling material (22) with a T-shaped cross section is used as a mask during patterning in order to produce structures having sublithographic dimensions, in particular a double-fin field effect transistor.

(Figure 1B)